Typography

Outfit (400–900) for headlines and on-screen text; Open Sans for body copy. Bold Outfit headlines with yellow highlight words.

Scene look

Deep navy radial-gradient background, a faint dot grid, a thin rising "growth line" across the bottom, and the full Lewis Marketing logo whenever the company is named.

Motion (videos)

- Hops in and waves at the camera; points at whatever is being explained; cheers on big moments; hops between scenes.
- Blinks every few seconds, antenna wobbles, grin opens when excited, squash-and-stretch on landing, soft floor shadow.
- A whoosh on every move and a soft pop on speech bubbles; original music only (no stock tracks).
- Generous pacing: each scene holds long enough to read comfortably.

USAGE

Do's and don'ts

Do

- Use the official 3D-style artwork every time
- Keep him clear of text; move or shrink him if he overlaps
- Point him toward the message or call to action
- Use the real emblem on his chest badge
- Open videos with "Hi, I'm Howie!" and close with "See you inside!"
- Use seasonal versions for holidays and celebrations

Don't

- Redraw, restyle, flatten, or recolor him
- Type "lm" text on his badge instead of the emblem
- Stretch or distort his proportions
- Cover headlines, prices, or buttons with him
- Confuse him with HighLevel's mascot; Howie is original to Lewis Marketing
